News From Mr. Moses' Class...

Using the Food and Nutrition kit as our footprint we have been looking at some videos that help us determine the best and the worse foods we could eat. We all agreed that even though the foods were declared horrible for you by Nutrition with Natalie they all were on our top ten lists of YUMMY ITEMS (except for fried catfish). This week they are recording everything they eat through Sunday along with what exercise they get and then we will analyze their health habits. The predictions so far look like we are an unhealthy eating class!!! This morning maybe four kids had what would be considered a nutritious breakfast! Five kids had no breakfast at all. I'm hoping this will be an eye opener for them to realize the importance of at least decent eating habits!

Rack Your Brain!!
See if you know the answer to the following trivia question. The first person to give the correct answer to Mrs. Oliver in the office after 9:15am on Monday will receive a prize.

How many national forests are in Washington?

Congratulations to Clifford Gilkerson for correctly answering last week's question. Hells Canyon is the deepest gorge in North America.

News from Miss Mathis' Class....

It's hard to believe that we are already at the beginning of third quarter! As we start this quarter, we are finishing up long division and will soon be starting a unit on fractions. In this unit students will learn how to find equivalent fractions and greatest common factors as well as how to reduce a fraction into simplest form. Remember that it is very important to stay brushed up on your multiplication facts! Keep practicing at home. In science we have finished an investigation to determine whether beetles and isopods prefer a wet or dry environment. Next week we will investigate water tolerance in plants such as corn, barley, peas, and radishes. We've been learning all about the American Revolution in our reading unit and will be learning about the Universe and space exploration in the upcoming unit.
